Webinar on “Artificial Intelligence” 12th Sept 2020

The screenshot shows a Zoom webinar interface. At the top, it says "Dilip Muralidaran is presenting". On the left, there is a circular profile picture of Dilip Muralidaran and a name tag. The main content area displays a slide titled "Artificial Intelligence" with a subtitle "A DISCUSSION ON PAST OBSERVATIONS, CURRENT TRENDS AND FUTURE POSSIBILITIES". The slide features an icon of a head with gears. Below the title, there is a list of languages for translation. The background of the slide shows a browser window with a Wikipedia article on "Big data" and a graph titled "Storage Capacity" comparing analog and digital storage from 2000 to 2007. The graph shows a sharp increase in digital storage capacity starting around 2002, labeled as the "beginning of the digital age".

Big data is a field of data management and information processing that involves the analysis of extremely large and complex data sets that are too complex to be dealt with by traditional data-processing application software. In many cases, the data sets are greater in size, and have a higher complexity (more rows or columns) than traditional data sets. Big data sets may also have a higher false discovery rate. Big data sets include geospatial information, social media, and other data.
